That Man Again

More Than 1300 at High School

Point Loma High school enrollment figures continue to mount. A check up for the superintendent's office on Thursday, September 17th, showed a total of 1275 and principal Swenson estimates that the 1300 mark has now been passed. The facilities of the school, despite the addition of the new four-room shop building, are again crowded beyond normal capacity and plans for the new four classroom addition are being speeded by the Board of Education. The latest development is that the walls of the new unit may be extended upward and roofed over to provide room for four additional rooms above which would be left unfinished for the time being. Since the school is growing at the rate of about four new classrooms full of students per year it would only be another year until the additional four classrooms would be needed. At the meeting of the Board of Education last Monday night, application was made to the Federal Government for funds to assist in this project.

Football is uppermost in the minds of most Point Loma students these days. Coach Beerkle, with the assistance of Coaches Purdy and Charley Wilson are working strenuously every evening with a squad of some seventy boys. Prospects for a highly successful season are very bright and throughout the Metropolitan League there is a feeling that Point Loma High is the team that is the greatest championship threat. Plans are going rapidly forward for the opening of the football season ticket campaign which will begin next week. The Student council has decided to sell tickets thru the home rooms this time. Senior high students will get their tickets for 90 cents and Junior high students for 65 cents. Adult tickets will be sold for one dollar and it is hoped that many of the alumni, parents and other friends of the school will become season ticket holders. General admission to the games will be thirty-five cents to football games and ten cents to basketball games and track meets. The season ticket will admit to all athletic contests held thruout the year at home on Ross field. The team was delighted to secure a check for thirteen dollars from the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club toward the purchase of a tackling dummy and thanks the club sincerely for this further evidence of interest and support.

Several teachers have had most interesting adventures this summer. Miss A. Bess Clark spent the summer in Japan and Manchoukuo as the guest of the Japanese Tourist bureau—one of a party of fifteen American teachers so honored. Mrs. Leora J. Sheridan spent the summer in Portugal touring, studying and teaching in the University of Cuimbra. Mrs. Florence Randall visited China during the summer and was delayed in securing passage back to United States because of congested travel conditions. Steamship passage was booked on many lines for two months in advance and she was very lucky to be able to get back to her classes by Tuesday of this week. Later the Ocean Beach News hopes to get more complete reports on the adventures of these teachers who visited foreign lands.

A complete list of the present faculty at Point Loma High school, together with their assignments is printed below.

KUNZ'S BOY PITCHED TWELVE RINGERS IN A GAME YESTERDAY. SO YOU HAD BETTER LOOKOUT FOR YOUR LAURELS AT THE COUNTY FAIR THIS YEAR.
HE'LL HAVE TO DO BETTER THAN THAT TO WIN THE CHAMPION SHIP FROM ME

Back Country Folks Will Come To County Fair

Beauty is supplanting wasteland, music and entertainment replacing desolation.

Thus from the Del Mar golf course nestled in the hills surrounding Del Mar has risen a magnificent fair grounds.

In contrast to the usual quiet which has for years prevailed in the little valley, the stirring music of 12 bands will echo from surrounding hills, the shouts and cheers of thousands will be heard for miles.

The San Diego County Fair will be the greatest in this district's history.

Already giant tents providing more than 200,000 square feet of exhibit space have been set up. Two buildings in which industrial and household art exhibits will be housed are rapidly nearing completion. A huge grandstand designed to accommodate the thousands of visitors has been erected facing the new one-mile race track.

Over the new track between 300 and 400 trotters and pacers will compete for more than $15,500 in awards. On the sidelines will be thousands of sportsmen—their favorite horse picked and their wagers placed through the parimutuel machines which will be maintained under state supervision at the track.

It will mark the first time in years that this thrilling sport has been brought to San Diego. The grand circuit, comprising the finest horses in the nation, will come to the Pacific Coast for the first time in its history to compete in the local events.

Dare devil motorcycle riders will thrill fair visitors with the most daring stunts ever performed on two-wheel vehicles.

Vaudeville and circus acts starring the best talent in the state, amateur programs, band concerts, and special programs for the children will comprise a part of the many entertainment features planned for the 11-day show, Oct 8 to 18.

Aimee Semple McPherson, famous evangelist, has been invited to conduct religious services on the grounds on Sunday, Oct. 11.

Special programs featuring a variety of entertainment are planned for Army, Navy and Marine day which will be held on the grounds Tuesday, Oct. 13.

The entertainment attractions are in addition to the thousands of entries to be seen in the agricultural, horticultural, floricultural, livestock and poultry departments, the industrial arts and household arts section.

Materials and products which will comprise many of the exhibits began moving on to the grounds this week. Fair officials announced that exhibit space is ready for many of the displays to be set up.

"It will be the most colorful display of products ever shown in this county," James E Franks, president and general manager of the Fair, said yesterday. "With our rearranged plan providing more than 200,000 square feet of display room, adequate space will be available for the thousands of entries."

Ballot Propositions Civic Forum Tuesday

"Propositions of the November Ballot" will be discussed by the Social-Civic forum Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. at the Ocean Beach elementary school.

The group decided at its last meeting on Tuesday last that it wanted to know the issues and the best thought on the 23 new measures before the voters of California. John R. Lyons, director of the forum, conducted under the auspices of the city schools adult education department, Paul Kline, supervisor, has attempted to secure speakers familiar with the issues and representing both sides of the controversial subjects. These will appear from time to time at the forum meetings to give of their judgement on the problems before the electorate.

The forum sessions are held every Tuesday evening, and are open to adults of all ages with no fee or expense of any kind.

Larger attendances indicate the increased interest in the forum discussions which are full and free and unfettered.

Democrats To Rally At Escondido Oct. 4

California Assembly of Democrats and all of the On With Roosevelt Club of San Diego county will give one more picnic and Democratic rally on Sunday, Oct. 4, at Grape Day park, Escondido. It is hoped that this will be the greatest gathering ever attempted by the organization. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo will be the principle speaker.

Arthur R. Fling, president of the On With Roosevelt Club of Ocean Beach urges all members and ardent supporters of Roosevelt to attend this last rally. Come and meet the Democrat leaders of California. Gather around your party for the last time before going to the polls November 3. Bring your lunch. Bring the children. Enjoy an interesting, happy day at Escondido. For further information, call Democratic headquarters at 5041 Newport Ave., Ocean Beach.

No Protests Heard Regard Fishing Pier

The City Planning commission in their meeting of Thursday, last week, held a hearing on the proposal of a fishing pier at foot of Point Loma avenue, Sunset Cliffs, and there were no protests filed.

As no finances as yet have been allotted to this project the commission deferred considering plans for its construction. They decided there was no use spending time on pier plans until there was some assurance that it could be financed.

SAN DIEGO KIWANIANS HOLD INTER-CLUB HERE

Myron Insko was the day's chairman with Dr. Felt presiding.

U.S. Navy Chaplain Rountree gave a very interesting talk entitling part of same, "I Like Depression" and bringing out the good points of living the simple life, bringing out the facts that high living did individuals and citizens no particular good.

The chaplain suggested the basic principles of good living was that of brotherly love, that we must get down to the fact, that we are our "brother's keeper," and the industrialist or employer, must not take all the laborer's hire as long as he is able to work, and then turn him out when he has served a life time of toil and put on the younger and cheaper help, making no provision for those that are let out when reaching the age of fifty or thereabouts.

He said our present civilization was in a maze and undecided which way to turn or go; that we were sadly in need of a real leader with divine guidance to carry us into a better world.

Visiting Kiwanians were Sam Frazee, E. D. Sherwin, L. L. Macey, Don Hansen, Lewis Bodmer, Legner Benbough, Harry Munn and Rev. C. Rankin Barnes.

Hastings Inspects Highway 93 at Own Expense

Inspecting at his own expense the border-to-border length of highway 93, Edgar F. Hastings, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, has returned from the convention at Whitefish, Montana, which was held in regard to details of highway 93, traffic lane to Canada, that is expected to prove a valuable asset to San Diego.

Combining the convention trip with his vacation, Chairman Hastings was accompanied by his wife and daughter. The Supervisor returned last week with a comprehensive report on the highway convention.

Appearing rested and much improved in vigor by the brief vacation he permitted himself, Hastings promptly turned his attention to county business upon his return and conferred with friends in the first district, who are launching an extensive campaign for his re-election as Supervisor of the first district.

Unable to give but little of his personal time to campaign matters during the primary period, Hastings attributed his leading vote to the efforts in his behalf volunteered by many friends throughout the first district, pointing out that a Supervisor is prevented from personal campaigning because his presence is required almost constantly at the courthouse during the months of June, July and August. He had only nine days during those three months to devote to his campaign, it was revealed. Hastings, now entering the final campaign, declared that he would not neglect the county's business and would rely heavily, as before, upon friends for his campaign work.

Hastings-for-supervisor committees are being formed throughout the first district and many offers of assistance are being volunteered, it is reported.

The many friends of the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors point to his record of achievement during his tenure in office as outstanding proof of the value of his services and the reason that he should be re-elected.

A builder by profession and by nature his friends point out, Hastings has given generously of his time and energy over and above his duties for the advancement of San Diego county. He has sponsored numerous work programs to aid unemployed and through his personal acquaintance with local, state and federal officials, has played major roles in obtaining much-needed improvement funds, in bringing the 200-inch telescope to San Diego county, in establishing the Civic Center on the waterfront and in routing the Matoon Act evils.

His splendid record while in office, his many accomplishments for his district and the county, his acquaintance with high officials which has proved of inestimable value to the county, and the fact that his honesty and integrity have never been questioned, has led to the prediction that Hastings will be returned to office by a strong majority at the Nov. 3rd election.

Far Western Business Best In Five Years

Bank of America's index of far western business conditions for August moved substantially higher than the index for July and reached the highest point in the past 60 months. The index registered 76.5 which is 21.8 points, or 39.9 per cent, above the depression low in March, 1933.

Building permits in 32 representative California cities totaled $98,584,000 for the first eight months of 1936. This represents an increase of $37,551,000 or 61.5 per cent over the like period of 1935.

The aggregate value of retail sales made by 90 reporting establishments in the eight far western states registered a gain of 11 per cent during the first eight months of this year as compared with the corresponding months of 1935.

Bank debits which are an index of business activity totaled $2,067,000,000 in 15 major California cities during August. This is a gain of $219,000,000 or 11.9 per cent over August a year ago.

The August index of prices received by California farmers for 24 of this state's major products of the soil registered 108 per cent of the July 1910-15 average. While this is a decline of three points over July, the index showed a gain of 19 points over August, 1935. The index of agricultural prices now stands 46 points, of 74.2 per cent, higher than in the month of April, 1933, the all-time depression low.

Hitler Demands Return of German Colonies—American Fleet to Maneuver in North Pacific—Discord in World Power Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

HUNDREDS of thousands of Nazis, attending the party convention in Nuremburg, were roused to great enthusiasm by a proclamation from Reichsfuehrer Hitler to the effect that Germany, having rearmed and scrapped most of the Versailles treaty, was ready to press its demand for restoration of its pre-war colonies. This, he asserted, was necessary to the economic independence of Germany and would be achieved within the next four years. Said the chancellor:

Adolf Hitler

"It is regrettable that the rest of the world fails to understand the nature and greatness of our task. If a certain British politician declares Germany needs no colonies as she may buy her raw materials, then this remark is about as bright as that of the Bourbon princess who, when she saw a mob crying for bread, wondered why—if the people had no bread—they did not eat cake.

"If Germany had not, for fifteen years, been squeezed dry and cheated of her entire international savings; if she had not lost her entire foreign holdings; if, above all, she still possessed her colonies, we could much more easily master the difficulties."

Then, addressing the convention directly, the fuehrer launched a new campaign against bolshevism and the Jews.

"Bolshevism seeks to exterminate governments based on a community of race and blood and replace them by non-Aryan Jewish element of no race," Hitler warned. "Sooner or later sovietistic authority states will end in anarchy, since Jewish elements possess only despotic faculties, never organizing reconstructive ones.

"The rock of foundation of the state is an authoritarian will. Unlimited individual liberty leads to anarchy. All states have experienced the destructive effects of democracy."

FOLLOWING closely upon the visit to France of Gen. Rydz-Smigly of Poland, France and Poland signed a military treaty of friendship. It was reported, too, that France had agreed to lend 600,000,000 francs for completion of Poland's new railroad linking the Silesian coal fields with the port of Gdynia, rival of the Free City of Danzig.

Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, told Berlin the Franco-Polish accord would have no effect on friendly relations with Germany; but nevertheless there was considerable anxiety in Warsaw concerning Germany's reaction.

BACK at his desk after an illness of six months, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson immediately made an announcement that will be of deep interest to Japan. The annual fleet maneuvers, which last May were shifted to the Canal Zone as a conciliatory gesture to Japan, will be held next year in North Pacific and Hawaiian waters, and probably the Tokio press will yelp again. With the announcement Sec. Swanson asserted Japanese plans to retain overage submarines and destroyers involve a "violation" of the London and Washington naval treaties, which are to expire December 31 by Japanese abrogation. He followed up his charge with the statement that the United States has completed plans for two new battleships and is prepared to begin construction "at a moment's notice."

Sec. Swanson

The fleet maneuvers, officially designated as "fleet problem No. 18," will be held during late May and early June. The area of operations, it was indicated, will be the triangle between the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, and Seattle, where the fleet problem of 1935 was conducted. Vessels and planes probably will work as far west as the Wake Islands.

Armament of the new battleships is at present limited to 14 inch guns, but Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, said frankly that if Japan does not agree to this limitation by next April, "the sky is the limit."

AMERICAN dairymen are protesting vainly to Secretary of State Hull against the reciprocal trade treaty with Brazil which, they assert, is seriously injuring the industry by encouragement of the manufacture of imitation butter. Under the treaty, Brazilian babassu oil, unknown in United States markets prior to 1935, now is being used at the rate of more than a million pounds a month for manufacture of a butter substitute.

Mr. Hull referred the protests to Assistant Secretary Sayre, who pointed out that the provision for free importation of the nut and oil was authorized by congress in the trade agreement act of 1934. He added that the success of the program was of vital interest to the American dairy farmer, "who has more to gain from the re-establishment of prosperous domestic markets for his products through the restoration of an abundant foreign trade than by a policy of excluding even the most remotely competitive products."

THERE was glee in government circles when it was announced that the United States treasury offering of $914,000,000 in 20 to 23-year two and three fourths per cent bonds dated September 15 was oversubscribed nine times. Of course those who are informed know that the reason is the banks, insurance companies and other investment institutions are glutted with money for which they have been seeking profitable employment.

Of the treasury's latest offering $400,000,000 of bonds is to raise new cash and $514,000,000 is to provide for the exchange of 1.5 per cent notes maturing September 15.

HUNDREDS of delegates, from many nations, were present when the third World Power conference opened in Washington, with President Julius Dorpmueller in the chair. Prospects were good for a useful discussion of the problems connected with the industry, but discord crept in early in the proceedings. At a round table debate on public regulation and ownership of utilities, M. P. Davidson, representing Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, said the only way to reduce electric rates is by threatening public ownership. Three prominent private utility men promptly "took a walk," and John C. Dalton, manager of the County of London Electric Supply, criticized Davidson's talk as a "tirade."

Julius Dorpmueller

The discussion started in connection with a paper by John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement company, who held that power "yardsticks" such as the TVA and Boulder Dam cannot be compared with private utilities unless operating conditions are similar. Such yardsticks, he said, will lead to competitive methods already proved "wasteful and unsatisfactory."

In papers taking the opposite view, Prof. William E. Mosher of Syracuse university, and James C. Bonright of the New York State Power Authority, held that public competition with private companies is "indisputable evidence" of declining faith in regulation.

ACCORDING to the New York Times, whose dispatches from Washington are usually most reliable, President Roosevelt is considering for submission to congress, in event of his re-election, a far-reaching plan of governmental reorganization. The plan possibly would involve, the Times stated, the consolidation or abolition of some of the major departments and bureaus.

"Whatever the President finally proposes," the Times said, "one may hear in informed quarters now that the regular cabinet posts might be decreased . . ."

A possibility, the Times stated, would be consolidation of the army, navy and air corps in a department of national defense.

"The administration proposes to follow a definite policy of curtailing or dismantling emergency units that have outrun their usefulness," the paper continued.

FRANCE'S government has decided that conditions in Europe are so threatening that it must spend a huge sum for national defense. So it adopted a program for increasing the efficiency of the army which will cost $930,000,000 in the next four years. The proposal was made by Edouard Daladier, minister of defense. The first installment of $280,000,000 will be disbursed in 1937.

The program calls for an intensive increase of mechanized units and also for rearmament. Furthermore, it provides an increase in the size of the professional army and the creation of a specialized group of long service noncommissioned officers such as already exist in the French navy.

The program also provides for strengthening the frontier fortifications. But the chief improvement will be made in the air force which will be increased by 2,000 planes.

FIERCE attacks by the Spanish rebels resulted in the capture of Irun, on the French border, and the defenders were mercilessly slaughtered save for those who were able to take refuge in France. The town was reduced to smoking ruins, and the victors promptly started an advance westward against San Sebastian, their main objective in the north. Recognizing the fact that this large resort city could not long be defended, the government administration there offered to surrender the place if full amnesty were promised; but declared if this were refused the city would be burned to the ground and the 625 fascist prisoners held there would be shot. There was great discord among the defenders, the anarchists insisting on destroying the city anyhow.

Then the Basque nationals took a hand, assuming control of the city and sending a lot of the anarchists to Bilbao. This move resulted in a virtual armistice while negotiations for surrender of the city went forward.

Later it was reported that the rebel forces had rejected the terms of surrender, and shelling of the city began. The civilian inhabitants were fleeing in panic.

South of Madrid the government forces were said to have made progress and there were claims that Talavera had been taken and that the Alcazar in Toledo was practically battered to pieces by loyalist artillery. The rebels' advance on Madrid from the south and west was supposed to have been halted.

French workers in Paris in a great demonstration insisted that the government abandon its nonintervention policy and give active aid to the Spanish government. Premier Blum, while not concealing his sympathy with the Madrid crowd, declared that if France dropped neutrality, Italy and Germany would be able to give the Spanish rebels much speedier and more effective aid than the French could give to the loyalists.

Representatives of twenty- four powers were scheduled to confer in London on plans for the establishment of a nonintervention control committee. Portugal, however, was still holding out.

CREWS of two Portuguese warships mutinied and decided to take the vessels to the aid of the Spanish government forces at Malaga or Valencia. As the ships started to leave their buoys the shore batteries opened fire. Twelve of the mutineers were killed and twenty wounded, and the others speedily gave in. The Lisbon government said the men were under the influence of communist propaganda.

SENATOR GEORGE W. NORRIS of Nebraska, Republican, who said he wished to retire from public life, is a candidate for re-election in spite of himself. A petition placing him on the ticket was filed by more than forty thousand of his friends, and only one thousand signatures were necessary. Mr. Norris is seventy-five years old. Chairman Farley of the Democratic party said the filing of the Norris petition made him "very happy."

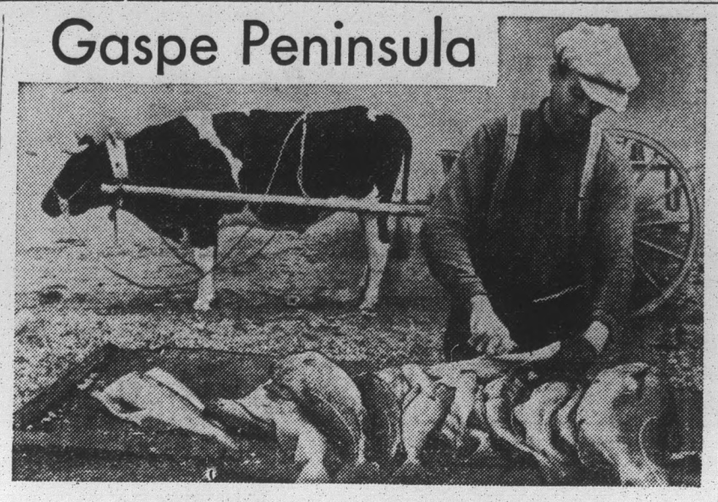
Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, severe critic of the New Deal, was defeated for nomination as United States senator by the present incumbent, Richard B. Russell. In Washington state Gov. Clarence D. Martin was renominated by the Democrats and former Gov. R. H. Hartley was named by the Republicans. Gov. Ed C. Johnson of Colorado captured the Democratic nomination for senator and will be opposed by R. L. Sauter, Republican. Arizona Democrats refused renomination to Gov. B. B. Moeur, selecting instead R. C. Stanford of Phoenix. In Connecticut the Republicans nominated Arthur M. Brown for governor.

HEROIC actions and dramatic rescues marked the collision of the excursion steamer Romance and the steamship New York in a dense fog ten miles off Boston, Mass. The Romance sank in twenty minutes, but every passenger and member of the crew was taken safely aboard the New York. The rescued numbered 268, most of the passengers being women and children from Greater Boston. The New York then turned back into Boston harbor with a twelve foot hole in her bow. There was no panic aboard the Romance, and the officers and crews of both vessels displayed discipline and bravery that elicited high praise.

JULIANA, crown princess of the Netherlands, has found her future husband in a German prince, Bernhard zur Lippe-Biesterfeld. The announcement of their betrothal was hailed in the Haegue with utmost joy. Juliana, who is twenty-seven, is beloved for her jollity and good humor, and also she has been carefully trained for the throne. Prince Bernhard, twenty-five years old, has been working for the German dye trust.

MRS. BERYL MARKHAM of England put her name on the roll of fame as the first woman to make a solo flight across the north Atlantic from east to west. She started from London for New York, but her fuel gave out and she was forced to land her small monoplane at Baleine cove near Louisberg, Nova Scotia.

Gaspe Peninsula



Cleaning Cod on the Gaspe Peninsula.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

LIKE an out-thrust tongue of land at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence river lies the Gaspe peninsula, one of the newer wonderlands of North America. With completion of the Perron Boulvard in 1928, it was opened to motorists around its entire area—about ten times that of Rhode Island. This summer it is being visited by an increasing number of vacationists from the United States.

The climate is literally unique. There is plenty of bright sunlight but no really hot weather. July and August seldom see more than 75 degrees.

Thanks to Gaspe's northern latitude, it has an hour or so more daylight each day in midsummer than Toronto or Boston. Best of all in this favored land is the air—once breathed, never forgotten. "Atmospheric champagne," it has been called.

Here northern outposts of the ancient Appalachian Mountain system, eastern backbone of the continent from Alabama to Canada, meet the sea and sink beneath it in a chaos of cliff and headland.

Tremendous forces of nature have left their mark all over the area. Ages of erosion have hollowed out huge valleys on the northern shore. On the south side of the peninsula, red cliffs and red pinnacles stand out in striking contrast with the blue of the water and the green of pines.

Beneath the waters lie other mountains, worn and leveled by the waves of centuries. Into these shallows, in countless millions, swarm the cod. Down the slopes flow rivers filled with salmon, streams with romantic, musical names—Matapedia, Restigouche.

People Are a Mixed Race

The first settlers were a few Norman and Breton fishermen who annually made adventurous journeys across the Atlantic to these famous codfishing grounds and finally decided to stay the year round instead of returning to France when the season was over.

Next came the Acadians, driven out of Nova Scotia. A few of them reached some isolated spots on the north side of the Bay of Chaleur, began fishing, and have been fishing ever since.

These Acadians have a distinctive accent and a way of speaking largely produced by their maritime habits. A horse "swings" in its course to starboard or larboard, as old time sailors said—and when you stop the steed is "moored."

After the cession of the country to Britain came the Channel Islanders, Guernseymen and Jerseymen from the English islands off the coast of France. Those English-French newcomers, speaking either language with complete facility, as they still do, settled down in some vacant spaces, set to fishing and privateering, and left plenty of descendants behind them.

A few years later, about the time of the American Revolution, groups of "loyalists," or "Tories," left the new United States to establish themselves at the head of Gaspe Bay and in other well-selected spots.

Then the Irish arrived—they, too, had settlements of their own—and another group, northern Irish or Scottish, of bold sea-roving stock in either case.

The Canadian habitant, most persistent and prolific of colonists, finally worked his way along both north and south shores and set an example of farming in a country which so far had been entirely devoted to fishing.

Finally, on the St. Lawrence near the mouth of the Metis river, at the landward end of the peninsula, was established a colony of Scottish and English settlers.

Revealed by a Highway

Ten years ago only a few outsiders had any idea of the interest and beauty of the Gaspe area, for it was difficult of access. The last few years, however, have seen astonishing changes.

By a remarkable feat of highway engineering, a broad safe 553-mile road, linked with the general systems of Quebec and New Brunswick, and so with those of New England, has encircled the entire peninsula. Automobiles can tour the area where ox carts and dog carts were outdistanced formerly only by the horse and the reckless bicycle. A popular approach is to cross the St. Lawrence from Quebec to Levic. An easy day's journey eastward, with the St. Lawrence at the left of the highway growing constantly wider, leads to Metis Beach, one of the most northerly summer resorts of eastern Canada and the first town to be encountered in the Gaspe peninsula. Here at Metis Beach the golfer has his last game, for a while, at any rate. The sportsman who is not afraid of cold water goes for a swim or a sail.

Turning south from there, the road crosses the base of the peninsula, climbing the hills behind the village to the watershed which separates the valley of the Metis river, flowing into the Saint Lawrence, from that of the Matapedia, flowing toward the Bay of Chaleur. Bay of Chaleur rivers, and there are plenty of them, are full of salmon.

The small white town of Carleton was named for an Eighteenth century governor general of Canada. Acadians of the original settlement in 1775 called the place Tracadigeche, from a Micmac word meaning "Place of Many Herons." The name was later changed, under the influence of Americans who came to Gaspe rather than fight against the English in the Revolution. A few miles farther, at the mouth of the Cascapedia river, a road runs off to the north to zinc and lead mines.

Hereabouts there are many farmers, mainly Canadians from the upper part of Quebec. They share their machinery and they have technical advisers from the government, so that their farms although small, are good. Farther up the coast, at Cape Cove, have been produced the finest peas in North America.

An Old Codfishing Town

The town of Paspebiac, old-fashioned codfishing center, is an odorous introduction to the authentic Gaspe industry. Down on the beach are warehouses, where many practices have remained the same since the industry began soon after the time of Jacques Cartier, 400 years ago. Cod are stored about as they were by the first local fishermen, in stacks resembling huge pine cones. Cod are split, spread open, and dried so that they are hard and flat as boards. Then they are arranged in cylindrical piles, the lower end smaller than the top and covered by pieces of birch bark held down by stones.

A few miles more brings the traveler to Port Daniel, where Jacques Cartier made his headquarters while he explored the Bay of Chaleur. A wide sand bar almost closes the mouth of the Port Daniel river, and most of the village is built on the sand bar. The road for the next 40 miles hugs the shore.

Then suddenly Perce comes to view. On the landward side are red peaks partly covered by greenery, then the tops of three fanglike cliffs and a white village nestling between them and the headlands fronting the bay.

Off shore stands the magnificent Pierced Rock (Rocher Perce) looking like the wall of some huge sea fortress or a monstrous battleship, dwarfing to insignificance the village to which it gives its name. Near its outward end an arch has been cut through by the action of the water. Farther seaward was the sentry tower of the wall, a smaller pinnacle of rock, originally joined to it by another arch which has long since fallen in.

The road from here to Gaspe climbs through mountain valleys and up peaks which are green and rounded on the landward side but fronting the sea as vertical red cliffs. Around the end of the peninsula lies Gaspe Bay. On its south side, along which the road runs, are hills and woods and farms. On the other side stands a range of wooded heights ending in the 700-foot cliffs of Cape Gaspe, a long stone finger pointing southeastward across the mouth of the bay. An extensive drawbridge crosses the bay where the French explorer, Jacques Cartier, discoverer of the St. Lawrence river, took refuge during a storm.

Gaspe village two years ago celebrated a four-hundredth anniversary, with French and British both participating in the ceremonies. A huge granite cross was unveiled near the spot where Cartier landed in 1534 and took possession of the soil for France.

The north shore of the Gaspe peninsula provides thrilling automobiling through the wild green Shickshock mountains. This worthy range of the Appalachians, rearing to a height of more than 4,000 feet, is strangely shaped. The summits are almost level; the peaks have been washed and ground away, and only the flat foundations are left. In the distance it looks like a barrier wall with higher towers rising here and there above it.

Smiles

What's in a Name?

"If a child were to come in and say that her mother had sent for 'a can of maltreated milk,' what would you give her?" asked the dairyman of his new assistant.

"Why, malted milk, of course."

"Fine! Our last man hunted all over the shelves for a can of whipped cream."

Fulfilled

Bill — Have you ever realized any of your childhood hopes?

Pete—Yes; when mother used to comb my hair I often wished I didn't have any.

Collecting 'Em

Henry—I've a good mind to propose to you.

Mabel—Oh, please do. I need one more proposal to beat my last year's record.

Too Well

Stranger — Is Shortleigh well known around here?

Native—I'll say he is. He is so well known that he has to go out of town to borrow a quarter.

Crying Need

Mary Jane—All my mistresses have admitted that I'm full of "go," madam.

Employer — That's very nice, but what I want is a girl with some staying power.

He is shown with his son. The tuna on the left, 788 pounds, was bigger than the tuna caught by Zane Grey which held the previous record.

Bedtime Story by Thornton W. Burgess

JERRY'S SUSPICION DIES HARD

ONCE faith and trust have been driven out by suspicion it is twice as hard to restore them as it was to establish them in the first place. That is why any one who plants in the mind of another suspicion of some one else does the very worst kind of an injury if it happens that there are no grounds for a suspicion.

Just take the case of Jerry Muskrat and Farmer Brown's Boy. Through kind and thoughtful deeds for a long time Farmer Brown's Boy had established faith and trust in the minds of Jerry Muskrat and all the other little people of the Green Forest, the Green Meadows, and all the Smiling Pool. They had learned to regard him as a true friend. Then along had come a stranger who also pretended to be a friend. Day after day he brought dainties for Jerry Muskrat until Jerry regarded him just as he did Farmer Brown's Boy and wasn't the least bit suspicious.

He No Longer Swam About Freely When Farmer Brown's Boy Was There as He Used To.

Then the stranger had set traps and Jerry had been caught by the tail in one of them. It was just good fortune that he had been able to get away, but all Jerry's faith and trust in two-legged creatures called men had been destroyed. He was suspicious of every one of them, including Farmer Brown's Boy. To be sure the latter had taken away the stranger's traps and had left a notice warning the stranger to stop trapping along the Laughing Brook and around the Smiling Pool. But Jerry couldn't read that notice. All he knew was that the stranger had been good to him just as Farmer Brown's Boy had and then had set a trap for him. How could he be sure that Farmer Brown's Boy wouldn't do the same thing?

So, though Farmer Brown's Boy came to the Smiling Pool every day and did everything he could think of to show Jerry that he was a true friend, Jerry continued to be suspicious. He no longer swam about freely when Farmer Brown's Boy was there, as he used to do. Instead, he remained hidden until Farmer Brown's Boy went away.

Always the latter left good things for Jerry to eat, things Jerry was fond of—pieces of sweet apple, carrot, parsnip, and pumpkin. But for a long time Jerry would not touch them. When at last he did venture to eat them it was only after a very careful search for hidden traps.

The queer thing is that all the time Jerry wanted to trust Farmer Brown's Boy just as he had in the past. But the memory of his sore tail and his dreadful fright kept suspicion alive. It simply wouldn't die. Farmer Brown's Boy knew it was so and understood why. It made him sad, and also it filled him with anger towards the trapper who had destroyed the old faith and trust.

THE GOAL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE is no path a pilgrim takes,
Whether it be by hills or lakes,
He really knows. He only knows
The shrine it leads to, way it goes,
But not until the morning breaks
Knows what tomorrow may disclose.

Perhaps the morning will be fair,
Perhaps the heavens dark with care,
And yet tomorrow's but a day.
As long as he is on his way,
And knows the shrine awaits him there,
It matters not if blue or gray.

And so the path of living hath
Both songs of joy and sounds of wrath.
A little while the thunders roll,
And yet they need not fret the soul—
The thing that counts is not the path,
For all that matters is the goal.

DISSOLVING COIN

WILL water dissolve a coin? The magician apparently proves that it will do so. It is a trick, of course, but a surprising one.

The coin is placed under a handkerchief which is held above a partly filled goblet, which rests on the magician's hand. The right hand releases the coin; beneath the handkerchief, it clinks into the glass.

The cloth is raised; the right hand gives the glass for examination. The coin has disappeared.

Just before he drops the coin, the magician tilts the glass slightly. Thus the coin falls past the goblet and strikes its base. Hearing the clink, listeners think the coin is in the glass. The left hand retains the handkerchief and passes the goblet for examination.

CURIOUS DEVICES USED FOR SEEING AFTER DARKNESS

It is presumed that man originally toiled or played only during hours of sunlight. That when darkness came and the eyes could no longer see—he lay himself down to rest. Yet all the while, Nature, through volcanic and meteoric disturbances, through flashes of lightning, was trying to demonstrate to man its power to create light in the midst of darkness.

Fire was discovered, and man found he could prolong the day with the aid of firebrands, camp fires, torches. And firelight was sufficient for his needs. He had no books to read, no socks to mend, nor any night-time chores that required precise seeing.

Just when the urge for better light first exerted itself, history does not say. There are records of the existence of lamps as early as the Fourth century B. C., but it is presumed that lamps of one kind or another had been employed long before.

The earliest lamps of which we have record were saucer shaped objects with a shallow projecting spout which held the wick. A hole in the center of this disc-like lamp held a small quantity of oil.

So far as is known, there was no radical development toward better lighting until 1783 A. D., when Leger of Paris devised a flat ribbon wick and burner. Not long after, Ami Argand of Paris, perfected a glass chimney which, together with his new improved type of circular wick and burner, produced illumination far superior to anything ever before seen.

Then in 1880, Auer von Welsbach, a German, developed a burner, in which the combination of a mixture of air and gas or vapor, heated to incandescence a mantle, composed of thoria and ceria.

Welsbach's mantle was, of course, crude and inefficient compared to present-day mantles. But to Welsbach, should go much of the credit for making available to us today, the pure white light which is so easily and economically provided in modern pressure mantle lamps using gasoline and kerosene for fuel.

In fact, despite the birth of the electric lamp and its now manifold uses throughout the world, there are still many millions—at least five million farm homes right here in America, to whom the new pressure mantle lamps offer the best, most eye-protecting illumination available. In fact, the new lamps are said to produce light of up to 300 candlepower brilliance and of a color that more nearly approaches daylight than anything yet conceived. Men can read — wives can sew — children can study—all without injury or strain to the eyes, under the radiant daylight brilliance of modern pressure mantle lamps.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

UNUSUAL DISHES

Bran Ginger Cake.

Cream one-fourth of a cupful of shortening with one-half cupful of sugar, add one beaten egg; beat well, then add one cupful of bran. Mix and sift together one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonfu' of ginger, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, and add alternately to the first mixture with one cupful each of sour milk and molasses. Pour into a well-greased pan and bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes.

Fish Souffle.

To two cupfuls of flaked salmon or tuna fish add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and the same of paprika, one-fourth cupful of lemon juice and mix well. Pour one cupful of scalded milk over one cupful of fresh bread crumbs, add the well-beaten yolks of six eggs and the fish. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites and pour into a well-buttered baking dish, set in a pan of water and bake until well set. Serves eight.

Chicken and Rice Souffle.

Take one and one-half cupfuls of diced chicken, one cupful of cooked rice, season well with salt and moisten with chicken gravy, adding two well-beaten egg yolks and carefully fold in the stiffly-beaten whites. Bake in a well-buttered pan until a golden brown.

Rice and Cheese Roll.

Mix two cupfuls of cooked rice, one cupful of grated cheese, one beaten egg, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne, one tablespoonful of milk, one-fourth of a cupful each of bread crumbs and chopped nuts. Add more milk if needed and shape into croquettes. Roll in crumbs and bake in the oven until brown. Serve with tomato sauce.

Griddle cakes will be much more wholesome if a handful of bran is added to the batter, giving the roughage needed in the food.

Trace Planes in Fog

Mountains enveloped in fog, ships lurking in darkness, airplanes hiding behind smoke of cloud screens or lost above airports can now be made visible as a ghostly half-tone picture on a ground-glass screen. Reflected high frequency sound waves are the key to this magic, says Popular Mechanics. By a process just patented these sound waves are projected as a beam from a noise generator resembling an anti-aircraft searchlight. As the beam strikes, for example, an unseen ship, the sound vibrations are deflected and modified in varying intensities by the shape of the ship and are picked up by a sound receiver and focused on a light controlling panel.

THE JOB'S HALF DONE

Outsiders who come and gaze in sheer unbelieving amazement at the natural wonders of California have sometimes accused us, who are lucky enough to live here, of not appreciating our good fortune.

To see how far wrong they are, one has only to consider the effort, enthusiasm and money Californians have expended to protect and develop our scenic beauties in a magnificent system of state parks.

Redwood Parks, Big Trees, Lake and Lagoon Parks, River and Waterfall Parks, Mountain Parks, Sandy Beaches, Desert Parks—in all there are seventy, with an area of 300,000 acres, representing an investment of $14,000,000. Eight millions of this has come to the State as gifts of property or funds, freely and gladly bestowed by philanthropic individuals or groups.

And yet this vast park program is scarcely half complete. Though our park fund is practically exhausted now, the prospect is that it will soon be replenished. Into that fund, if the November ballot initiative prohibiting tideland oil drilling passes, will go half the royalties to be gained from submerged oil pools. And it will pass, if one may judge from the sentiment now swelling up to support the State Park Commission's request for it.

When it is completed, this park program of ours will stand as one of California's greatest achievements. There will not be a community in the state which does not have a redwood grove, a beach, or a mountain playground

Did someone say California does not appreciate our abundance of natural beauty? Perhaps they don't realize that our understanding is deeper and therefore quieter than that of the amazed visitor, and shows itself openly only when there is something to be done to protect or preserve Nature's gifts.

Is there a perspective state of mind today capable of telling us, in the transitories of human existence, what is in the near future of world affairs? He must be a modern prophet; with Europe on the threshold of war; Asia not far behind, while America is seeking security and permanence, peace, rest and abiding comfort, while in the midst of labor strikes, industrial strifes and the burden of financing government indebtedness! With the call for a 40-hour week and that 25 per cent wage increase, it is cited that there are 1.173 strikes thus far in 1936 against 2,014 over the corresponding period a year ago; that the number of workers on strike is 100,000 in ten principal types of industry and the total number for the year is expected to be not far from 1,000,000. No guaranteed assurance of lessening strikes is held out and authorities say that improving business conditions will surely cause a greater conflict. There seems to be a world of chaotic trouble, and with all this, a metropolitan district not far away in a recent week end reported five killed, 65 injured and 20 drunk drivers jailed! Most any person could prophecy what is best needed.

The worst enemy against contentment and happiness is fear and worry! Its tentacles have a far-reaching reach and leaves a cancerous sore always to trouble you. Human happiness is too sacred a privilege to be marred by whatsoever means, but it is a silly habit the average person gets into, by thinking it is living to "borrow trouble." Worry is just another name for fear, a distructive yokefellow! Why not cultivate the opposite? Humor is a strong medicine that will not hurt, but always a cure. Its cures are for suicide, disappointment, ill health(in many cases), and a host of other painfully disagreeable things. Laugh instead of getting into a tangent of terror and fear. Self government is the potential power needed. Every human is accredited with three natures, the mental, the moral and the physical. He owes a debt to all of them. It is the worrier himself who takes the cup of life and with his own hands pours into it the wormwood and the gall. As Goethe says: "Life is a quarry, out of which we are to mold and chisel and complete a character."

Man is created in the image of his maker, therefore, next to Him in power and greatness. This is best shown in man's brain and brawn over Boulder Dam, built by marvelous skill of engineers and expert surveyors of technology; the greatest engineering undertaking in the world! When the President pressed the button in his Washington office, the great mystery if success of the job was solved and 12 gigantic outlet valves, opened for the first time, released a cascade of rushing waters greater than the Niagara falls, as the valves were 13 feet higher than the great falls; besides the waters tumbled a far greater distance. This dam is higher than the Woolworth building and has required over three years building, with workmen pouring concrete day and night. It has created a lake larger than Lake Tahoe, while the cost will run approximately $385,000,000, larger than the cost of building Panama Canal. The structure required 5,000,000 cubic yards of concrete, weighing 7,000,000 tons; 730 feet above the stream bed, or 582 feet above the average water level.

Henry Ford is about to celebrate his 73rd birthday but at his age, he still has no idea of retiring. He is more interested in keeping fit, so most every morning he takes his bicycle ride to be physically fit and mentally strong. Mr. Ford follows many simple practices and thus calls it his medicine. As a conservator of economic measures, so is he in health, by following health rules. He believes in work and more work, and for that reason he has proven that opportunity still lives and that endeavor will turn to gold, the "gold of accomplishment!" Everyone admires Mr. Ford's simplicity of living, combined with his unselfish heart. As a czar of finance and leader of industry, he has earned the place as America's best-known business man. Opera 'The Gondoliers' Pleasing Patrons.

"The Gondoliers" current attraction at the Savoy theatre, San Diego, which will run through Saturday with a matinee at 2:15, promises to exceed the recent smash success of "The Mikado," which drew more than 15,000 at seven performances.

The brilliant cast of 14 professionals is ably supported by a chorus of 60 picked voices and an orchestra of 30 musicians, under the direction of Julius Leib. Special ballets have been prepared by Hemphill's school of the dance. Magnificently mounted and gorgeously costumed the production is on a scale even more lavish than that afforded "The Mikado" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" last spring. William G. Stewart, foremost living authority on Gilbert and Sullivan, has personally directed all details of the production.

Charles Cannon, who as Ko-Ko, stopped all peformances of "The Mikado" for seven encores of his parody on "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring," has another outstanding part in the role of Giuseppe, one of the gondoliers, who was King for a day. The role of Marco, Guiseppe's brother has been assigned to Jack Dawson. Carmen Conger, whose delightful soprano voice is well known in San Diego, is heard as Princess Casilda. The Duke and his Duchess are played by Gerard Dougherty and Leona Wolmer. George Guenther's deep resonant voice is superb in the important part of Don Alhambra. Luiz will be sung by Alfred Carothers. Genevieve Roberts as Gianetta, Helen LaZelle as Tessa and Caliste Walker as Inez complete the list of principals. Students in recognized schools and colleges may secure seats at one-half the regular price.

BIOLOGICAL SURVEY NEEDS BIRD OBSERVERS

More volunteer observers of bird migration in the South and West. Address United States Biological Survey, Washington, D. C.

The survey reports it has plenty of bird observers east of the Mississippi River and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers, but not enough in the south and west. Persons in these two regions interested in becoming bird observers are requested to write Biological Survey. The main qualification is th ability to identify birds.

Bird-migration observers serve without pay largely because they find their work a facinating hobby. Some of them make a game of keeping track of birds and especially in noting the arrival and departure of migratory species. In some areas on important migration routes observers have listed more than 100 species daily. The reports provide facts that are particularly useful in establishing regulations for hunting waterfowl.

WE CALL FOR AND DELIVEP
GIVE US A TRIAL

Passengers in the smoking compartment on my train were arguing about why railroad business is picking up.

A factory owner said it was because of Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight. The railroad calls for the LCL freight at shipper's door and delivers it to consignee's door.

A traveling salesman said it was because so many passenger and freight trains now run on faster schedules.

There was a school principal in the group and he said it was because train travel is so much cheaper for passengers. He said passenger fares are at the lowest point in history, with substantial reductions if you buy a round-trip ticket—and no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

One man, a farmer, said he liked something he could depend on, that's why he was traveling by train.

Another man, a newspaper reporter, said people were in favor of railroad travel because it is by far the safest. He quoted a lot of statistics from a book called, "Live and Let Live."

A banker we all know by name said railroad tax payments mean a lot in this state.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

POEM BY OCEAN BEACH RESIDENT RECOGNIZED

Capt. and Mrs. Chas. F. Ma[illegible] returned home last week from more than a month's auto trip visiting California National parks. While away Mr. May wrote the following poem which the superintendent of General Grant National park requested permission to frame and place on the "General Grant" Sequoia tree in the park. It was also placed on a miniature replica of the "General Grant tree" at the State fair at Sacramento.

TO A CALIFORNIA FOREST TREE

Thou, Sequoia, "General Grant" that we Proclaim "Our Nation's Christmas Tree":
In your secluded, mountain home
Before "the rise and fall of Rome,"
More than four thousand years you've stood,
The Monarch of our great world of wood;
And, you have never ceased to grow,
Defying raging fires and snow;
Thus, you will be admired by men,
Until "our Saviour comes again."

Capt. Chas. Fremont May cowboy poet.

FANCY WORDS and literary writing do not count in this contest—just your own reasons for defeating a scheme to put hidden taxes on the foods and other necessities you buy. So you can win as well as anyone.

Only residents of California are eligible. That gives you a better opportunity for a prize.

Merely obtain an Official Entry Blank—free, without special purchase—at any chain store. It gives the simple rules and a valuable list of ideas.

The sooner you start the more likely you will be to win $500.00 in cash or one of the 309 other money awards. Entries must be written on the official blank and postmarked not later than midnight, October 13, 1936.

READ THESE FACTS

Hiding under the innocent title of "Retail Store License," Proposition #22 on the November ballot is really a new scheme for taxing the public.

Proposing to tax individual stores $1 a year and chain stores $500.00 for each store over nine, it has been petitioned against by 136,000 Californians because . . .

It Would Raise Prices

The U. S. Federal Trade Commission says: "If the ability to undersell, based on greater efficiency or on elimination of credit and delivery cost, is destroyed by taxation, it is the consuming public which will really pay the tax and not the chain."

It Would Be Unfair

Not a tax for revenue, not based on the ability to pay—it is an attempt to use the taxing power to destroy competition.

Small chain stores would be taxed up to 500,000 times as much per dollar of sales as big department stores.

It Would Hurt California

Chain stores now benefit California consumers, farmers, employment, property owners; taxpayers and investors. To cripple them is to hurt all California business.

22 IS A TAX ON YOU —VOTE NO!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text is from Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

One of the Bible selections in the Lesson - Sermon includes these verses from Isaiah: "Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert."

The Lesson-Sermon presents also these words from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Harmony in man is as real and immortal as in music."

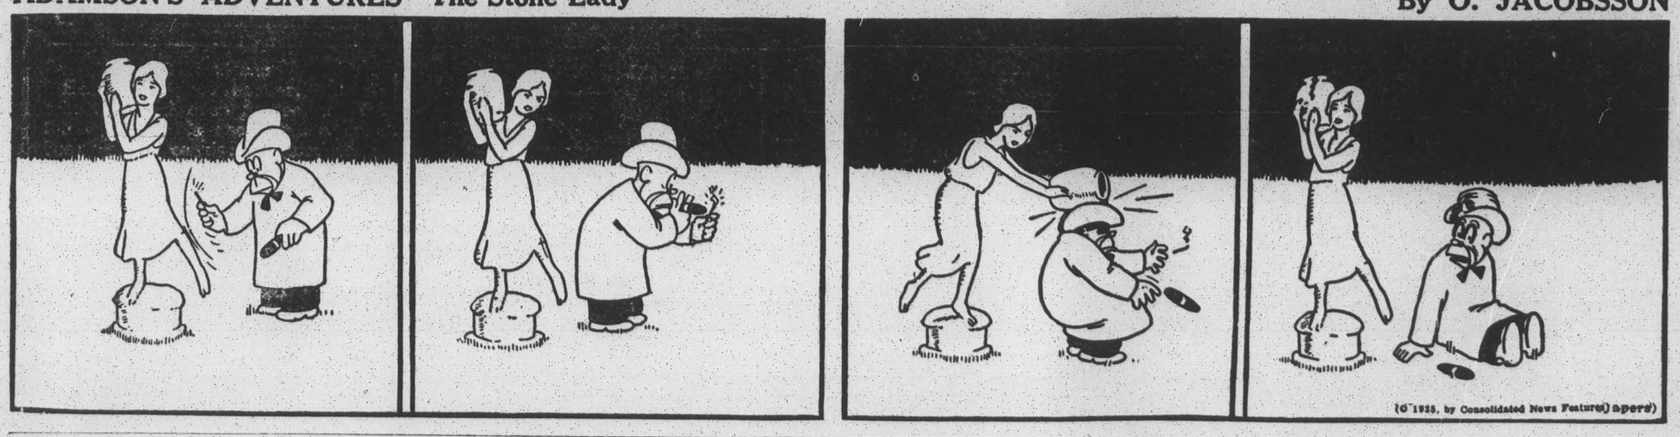
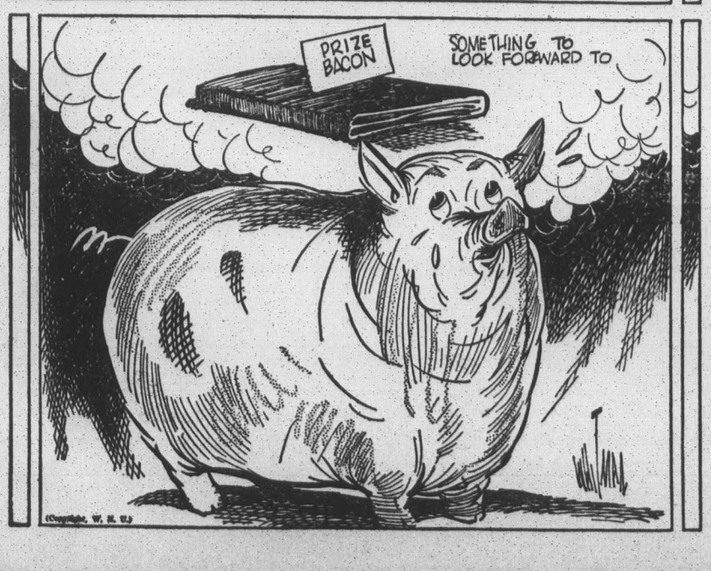
The Stone Lady

By O. JACOBSSON



The Curse of Progress



Not This Time!

The bride of a few weeks noticed that her husband was depressed.

"Gerald, dearest," she said, "I know something is troubling you, and I want you to tell me what it is; your worries are not your worries now, they are our worries."

"O, very well," he said. "We've just had a letter from a girl in New York and she's suing us for breach of promise." — Montreal Star.

Long Way 'Round

The "Fat Lady" of the circus was taking a walk one day and, hesitating in the middle of the road was knocked down by a taxi. Luckily, she was not hurt, and getting up, she stormed at the Cockney driver.

"Why did you run into me, you fool. Couldn't you have gone around me?" she screamed.

"Sorry, lidy," was the reply "I didn't fink I 'ad enough gasoline left."

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tambel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tambel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him. Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champion horseman, McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. McCrossen picks up a handkerchief from the ground riding full speed, facing backward. Denison easily follows suit. Denison then drops a cigarette carelessly. Racing down the track full tilt, he picks up the cigarette. The verdict goes to Denison when McCrossen refuses to attempt the stunt. Entreated by the crowd, Denison agrees to perform another trick. Jane Van Tambel is asked for her bracelet and throws it on the track. Just as Denison rides to pick it up a yell from Barney Rebstock, a McCrossen henchman, scares the pony, nearly costing the rider his life. Gun play is prevented by the intervention of Dr. Carpy. The young stranger returns the bracelet to Jane. Back on Gunlock ranch after two years in Chicago, because of her father's illness, Jane gets lost riding in the hills and meets Denison, now a neighbor, who guides her home. Not knowing her identity, he speaks bitterly of Van Tambel. She tells McCrossen who brought her home and he denounces Denison as a cattle thief.

It nettled her foreman. "He's the worst enemy your father ever had in this whole country. He's probably stole more Gunlock cattle than all the rustlers in the hills."

"I don't believe it."

"All right, don't," exclaimed McCrossen, nettled. "Just ask any of the boys around the ranch."

Jane rode into Sleepy Cat next morning with Bull Page, and when she had dispatched her business at the bank, she walked up street to Carpy's hotel.

She asked for Doctor Carpy, whom she remembered from her visit two years before. The doctor had a private office, entered both from the hotel lobby and the street.

The doctor was somewhat surprised at the sight of this trim, erect girl, eighteen or nineteen years of age, and seemingly a stranger, facing him. Obviously she was a newcomer to Sleepy Cat; the doctor did not at once place her. But his glance swept everything about her like a flash—her cowboy hat, her red, open-neck blouse with its dark flowing tie; her sloping feminine shoulders; delicate, pleasing bosom and slender, rounded hips; her short brown riding skirt and her soft, tight-fitting tan boots. The rig seemed right for her brown hair and blue eyes. "Doctor Carpy?" her voice was clear and her manner possessed.

Carpy nodded. Despite his years, the sight of trim, girlish womanhood always stirred the blunt old surgeon to graciousness. The doctor doffed his hat and set his bag down on the desk with an air of satisfaction. "I'm Doctor Carpy. But I'm glad to see you don't need me or any other doctor."

"Why, Doctor!" exclaimed Jane demurely. There was a sophistication in the delicate droop of her eyelids, as she protested, that did not escape the doctor. It deceived him only as to her age. "That's hardly complimentary, Doctor Carpy," she ran on. "Have you forgotten Frontier day two years ago when we sat here on the porch together and in the rickety grandstand to see the riding?" Her eyes were laughing. Doctor Carpy was flustered.

"What is your name?"

"Not a very popular one in this country. I'm Jane Van Tambel."

He knit his brows. "Why, that's maybe two years ago, and it was a little girl that I talked to here on the porch and took to the races. I'll be hanged! Two years! And you've sprung into full bloom. Full bloom!" repeated Carpy in undisguised admiration. "Where've you been ever since?"

"In Chicago. You look exactly the same, Doctor."

"Can't say I feel exactly the same, Jane," he said. His eyes still rested on her. "How long were you out last time?"

"Only two months or so. But I'm out now to stay, perhaps."

"I heard something lately about some women folks over to Gunlock, but I didn't hear of you being over there. If I had, I'd have been over there myself. So you're Gus' daughter," he mused.

"I'm his only child. Doctor."

"Never knew he had a child till you came out the first time. You threw your bracelet out on the track, didn't you?"

"That was partly your fault, Doctor."

"Was it? Well, you got it back."

"I did, but I never learned the name of the man that picked it up. All I could find out, when I asked, was that he was a rustler. You don't remember him, do you?"

"Of course I do. Who the hell said he was a rustler?"

"Why, that's what they told me at the ranch after we got home."

"Well, you've got some able-bodied liars at Gunlock—one in particular."

"Who's that?"

"No need to specify."

"Well, what's the name of the wonderful rider who picked up the bracelet? And the cigarette?"

"It was Bill Denison."

Jane started imperceptibly.

"He's living here now on his brother's hill ranch—brother's dead. Well, Jane, what in the world brought you out here?"

"Why, because Father's so ill." Doctor Carpy nodded. "You took care of him, Doctor, and recommended his going to Medicine Bend—"

"It was pretty high for him here."

"—so he telegraphed for me to come out to look after the ranch—"

"Small girl for big job, as the Indians would say."

Jane laughed. "That's what Father said when he saw me. You know two years ago was the first time in his life he'd ever seen me."

"I never knew till then the—your father had a family."

"Father was peculiar, you know. A little while after I was born he just disappeared. It was years before we even knew where he was. Then he began sending money back to Mother sometimes, but he never wrote a line. Then Mother died, and I went to live with my Aunt Lou."

"How old are you, Jane?"

"Almost nineteen."

"Well, well!" mused Doctor Carpy still regarding his caller benevolently. "So you're Van Tambel's daughter. I guess you take after your mother. The doctor spoke evenly, but the implication did not pass unnoticed.

"Aunt Lou says I do," she returned with composure. "So Father said, too, when I went to see him at the hospital in Medicine Bend last month. And he told me, Doctor, to come to see you about his bill. I couldn't find one from you among the bills at the ranch. Did you ever send one?"

"Hell, Jane, I never sent a bill to anybody in my life."

"Doctor!" exclaimed his caller, startled both at the expletive and the statement. "I never heard of a doctor who didn't sent out bills!"

Carpy laughed uproariously. "Why, that's nothing."

"But," she went on, "you took care of Father quite a while. He thinks you're the best doctor he ever had."

The sardonic note in the doctor's slight laugh as he suppressed an exclamation did not escape the girl. "But everyone out here says that or something just like it, so you must be used to it," she added. "Please tell me now, Doctor, what the bill is; I want to pay you."

The doctor waved Jane off. When he sidestepped, she kept after him. He dodged, and she persisted. At last she drew from her purse two one-hundred-dollar bills and laid them on the table in front of him. Carpy looked at them in astonishment. "Your father hasn't gone out of his mind, has he?"

"No," Jane retorted. "Why? That's not enough, is it?" she added shamefacedly. "I didn't know."

"It's at least twice too much. Did Gus send this?"

Jane had to fib a bit. She had added a hundred dollars herself to what her father had told her would be about right, if Carpy refused to name the bill. "He told me he wanted you well paid," she answered evasively.

Carpy pushed one bill back to Jane. "That's plenty,"

"Doctor," she exclaimed, "I wish you'd take this other bill."

He shook his head. "Put it back in your purse. How are things out at the ranch?"

"You know how it is when the cat's away," laughed Jane.

"You must mean the wildcat," suggested Carpy, grinning half amiably.

"Everyone doing things his own way," she continued, ignoring the thrust. "Or not doing them at all."

"Mostly that, I guess."

"Mostly that," agreed Jane. "I can see I have plenty of work ahead."

"And you going on nineteen. And, I'll bet, never did a day's work in your life."

She straightened up. "I've worked every day of my life since I left high school at fifteen."

"What for?"

"Helping support Mother."

Carpy flashed with anger. "Do you mean to tell me that old curmudgeon father of yours didn't support you and your mother?"

Jane's eyes fell. She crimsoned. Then, collecting herself, she said, "I did not mean to tell you, Doctor. It slipped out. We've nearly always had to look out for ourselves—but I hate to talk about it, Doctor. Father says he's sorry. When I telegraphed him about Mother's death, he was all broken up and sent me so much money for the expenses that I didn't know what to do with it—though it was too late to do poor Mother any good. I know Father's eccentric, Doctor," Jane continued gravely. "But that doesn't explain, to me, why everybody out here hates him. And that's what I've wanted to ask somebody like you, Doctor, somebody who would tell me the truth. Why is Father so disliked? Is it because he is so rich?"

Dr. Carpy was taken aback. Here was an innocent and charming girl budding into a lovely womanhood, the daughter of an unscrupulous criminal and thoroughly detested cattle king, asking him to tell her why her father was so hated along the Spanish Sinks.

"Well, Jane," he said at length slowly, "many a rich man is hated without good reason."

But if he thought he could get off with such a general observation he was mistaken. Jane pursued him. "Was that the case with Father?" she asked bluntly.

"Other rich men are hated," continued Carpy, unmoved, "not because they're rich, but because of the way they got rich!"

The force of his words was not lost on his listener.

"And if a man does get rich here or anywhere else, they don't lose any time hatching up lies about him, do they?" she said indignantly. "Father warned me when I saw him at the hospital that I'd hear stories about him. But there are always two sides to stories."

She spoke with a fire that surprised even her listener, who was seasoned to surprises. "There's a chip of the old block," he said to himself. He regretted he had insinuated so much. But while he tried to soften the impact of his words, he would not entirely retreat.

"I probably ought to say, Jane, that I myself didn't get on well with your father. So my verdict might not be a fair one. Another man might give a more favorable opinion."

"What other man, Doctor?" she asked so coolly that she upset the doctor again.

"Why, offhand, I couldn't say right now, Jane."

"Doctor," said Van Tambel's daughter, rising, suddenly; he thought her still angry, but she really wasn't—"may I come again, just to talk with you, perhaps get a little advice—come without excuse at all to see you—just plain come?" she asked, stiffly but impulsively.

"Why, of course you may, Jane. Why not? Come any time, all times—my latchstring's always out for you," declared Carpy, swayed by an admiration he could not resist.

"And you won't harbor any feelings against me just because you don't like my father?"

"How could I?" Doctor Carpy almost gasped with surprise at her poise. "Jane," he said, taking her hand, "just feel I'm your friend—I mean it. Sick or well, I'll be with you. I don't care a damn who your father is or was—is that plain, girl?"

"I'm awfully grateful, Doctor," she said collectedly. "If I get into a tight place, or into trouble, I'll know where I'll have a friend to turn to."

"Don't be afraid!" exclaimed Carpy emphatically. "You'll find you'll make plenty of friends out here just as soon as you get acquainted—don't be afraid!" he repeated.

Jane was at the door. She turned. "And Doctor," she said, with seeming innocence, "try to think of the name of the man who will give that more favorable opinion."

While Bull waited for his mistress during her talk with Carpy, he dropped into Jake Spotts' barber shop for a shave.

Spotts, who was bald as a billiard ball, expressed surprise when Bull gave his order. "Whiskers off?" he exclaimed.

"Take 'em off," repeated Bull doggedly.

"Must be goin' to get married?"

"Well, not exactly," explained Bull. "We got wimmen folks out to Gunlock now, 'n' the boys are sprucin' up."

"What wimmen folks?"

"Ain't you heard? Got a girl there, daughter of old Gus."

"Is that damned old critter down at the Medicine Bend hospital yet?" demanded Spotts—but his expletives were much more ferocious.

A heavy bass voice was heard from the second chair, where Oscar was shaving a man. "Slow, Jake," protested the man in the chair, "go slow—don't get to cussin' out old Van Tambel."

"All right, Panama; all right," returned Spotts, resignedly, "I plum forgot you were there."

"That man," gravely continued the man addressed as "Panama" and referring to Van Tambel, "will keep more Sleepy Cat folks out of heaven than the devil himself."

"How's that?" asked Spotts.

"Why? Because everybody cusses him so terrible whenever his name comes up."

"I guess that's right," agreed Spotts. "Anyway, there's more damned blaspheemin' goin' on in this town—"

"Careful, Jake; careful," admonished Panama.

"All right, Panama," grumbled the notoriously profane barber. Then, under his breath, so Panama could not hear, "It's got so a man can't say a damned word any more. What's the girl like, Bull?" he asked.

"Well," responded the Gunlock hearty, "she's comin' around eighteen or twenty; lively as a cricket and straight as a ramrod."

"Is she anythin' like old Van Tambel?"

"Not a bit. She's as nice and tidy a miss as you'd want to set eyes on."

"Then there's one grand big mistake somewheres," declared Spotts, definitively. "That damned old critter couldn't be the father of a girl like that."

"Tut, tut, Jake," interposed Panama, rising solemnly from the chair and reaching for his collar and tie. "You promised to give up swearing."

"Well, hell, I can't quit all at once, can I?" demanded Spotts testily. "Ain't I doin' better every day?"

"Got to watch you, though, I guess," observed Panama shrewdly.

Bull caught sight of the man out of the corner of his eye. He was almost gigantic in proportions. Tall, stout, erect, with leonine features, shaggy brows and a heavy mop of coarse, straight, black hair, worn long and cut flatly across the back of his neck.

It Doesn't Pay—

Doing Favors for Others With Thought of Return Disappoints

"THE older I grow the more I am appalled by the ingratitude, the complete lack of a sense of obligation on the part of our fellow human beings.

"With me the people who come first are always those to whom I have any obligation whatsoever. Anything that is done for me is constantly on my mind and I am on the lookout to repay. But look about you and you will observe the most inconceivable indifference on the part of most otherwise decent people to what they owe to others. Indeed the code seems to be to cultivate those from whom some advantage may be forthcoming and neglect those to whom we are indebted. The answer to it all is to put yourself out for nobody; it doesn't pay."

It must have been an unusually unfortunate chain of experiences that gave this woman such an unhappy slant on human nature. But certain it is that favors done with thought of return are bound to bring disappointment. In this busy, hectic world, people are likely to be rather casual about give and take. That does not necessarily mean that they are unappreciative. They are just not punctilious. Frequently a kindness makes its mark but time passes before occasion presents itself to show appreciation, or to reciprocate. After all, if we think enough of people to put ourselves out for them, as our reader says, there must be a certain amount of faith.

If we do things for others only because we want to do them and find a certain satisfaction in it, we have nothing to lose. But the expected reward is something like the watched pot—very disappointing. In fact, it doesn't pay.

The Fourth Degree

Third degree police methods have long been known in America, but South America has produced a new one that might be called—fourth degree.

Following the murder of two Scotsmen in a bank raid at Santa Cruz over a year ago, two men were arrested. But arrests were not enough. The police wanted their men to talk.

So they took one of them, Emilo Lajus, for a "death ride" in a 'plane. And what a ride!

After a few loops, "falling leaf" stunts, high-speed dives and other nerve-storming tricks, the man confessed—and liked it. As a result the police recovered $31,500 (about half) of the money.

Veterans Card Party Success In New Hall

The welcome sign was out to all comers at the opening Wednesday night of the joint veteran's hall at 4731 Point Loma avenue, under auspices of the Fleet Reserve association, assisted in making a success by the American Legion and V.F.W posts and their auxiliaries.

This first affair in the new quarters was a card party in which twenty tables entered play. Prizes were donated by local merchants as follows: Kraft Drugs, Strand Radio, Strand Theatre, Richley Hardware, Noorda's Bakery, Ray Pommier, Elenia's Beauty Shop, Ocean Beach Beauty Shop, Faber's Grocery, Tony's Cafe, Gus' Place and several others.

High score in bridge went to Mrs. H. M. Conklin and James Oliver; low to George Shiroli and Mrs. Naomi Dick. High score in 500 to J. A. McCaffery and Mrs. James O'Conner; low to Mr. Fouks and Mrs. Turskey.

This new hall of the vets is a surprisingly good building constructed for a store and occupied for a time by the Sunnyside Market at time when Sunset Cliffs sub-division was booming. It has been unoccupied for several years but now apparently will fit in with the scheme of the local veteran's to have their own building for meetings and social affairs.
